Board members spearhead advocacy efforts nationally for vital policy resolutions

Lake County Board Members took center stage at the National Association of Counties (NACo) annual meeting, advocating passionately for a set of policy resolutions aimed at securing support for counties nationwide. The resolutions spanned critical areas including disaster relief, broadband affordability, railway safety enhancement, and law enforcement deflection initiatives.

During the NACo annual meeting, which gathered county officials from across the nation, Lake Board Members emerged as driving forces behind discussions that could shape the future of counties' capabilities to address pressing challenges. Ten Lake County Board Members and County staff in attendance actively engaged with counterparts from different regions, fostering productive dialogue proposed policy resolutions.

The resolutions, presented by Lake County Board Vice-Chair Mary Ross-Cunningham and Board Member Jennifer Clark, underscore the pressing needs of counties across the United States:

National Railway Safety

Urging Congress and the Federal Railroad Administration (FRA), in collaboration with local and other relevant stakeholders, to take immediate action to address train delays. These delays result in idling freight trains that create harmful environmental impacts on local communities and block at-grade crossings, adversely impacting public safety and harming economic develop-

Law Enforcement Deflection Initiatives

Communities across the and garnering support for the country are facing a behavioral health crisis related to throughout the entire disaster substance abuse and mental area, instead of focusing just health. To provide resources needed to combat the devastating impacts of the crisis, law enforcement agencies are implementing deflection programs. Lake County urges Congress to increase financial support for measures that maximize the ability of counties to develop and support programs that deflect non-violent individuals experiencing behavioral health crises into treatment driven by an integrated and accessible continuum of care.

Increasing Access to Broadband ACP Program

Urging the FCC to require internet service providers to offer the $100 connected device discount to eligible households as part of the Affordable Connectivity Program (ACP).

Disaster Relief Equity Across State Lines

Currently, there is no consideration in fairly granting federal resources to counties during a localized disaster event in which one county receives a level of assistance, and the neighboring county across state borders that was impacted equally, does not. Lake County, which borders Wisconsin, is advocating for a federal study be completed that looks for ways to provide equal federal support on the county and/or state.

All proposed resolutions garnered the endorsement of the NACo Executive Board, thereby meriting inclusion within NACo's definitive 2023-2024 American County Platform and Resolutions.

"With NACo's endorsement we now look forward to the federal government considering these resolutions that would make a huge impact for people in our county and everyone across the nation," said Lake County Board Chair Sandy Hart. "I thank Vice-Chair Ross-Cunningham, Member Clark, the Board Members and staff that attended this year's conference to give Lake County the national voice it deserves."

Beyond these noteworthy accomplishments, county staff and Board Members actively engaged in a comprehensive array of sessions over the course of the four-day conference. These sessions addressed a spectrum of important topics such as public safety, emergency management, environmental sustainability, and the provision of affordable housing. Valuable insights into optimal practices and possible funding opportunities were collected and relayed to the teams within Lake County government for thorough evaluation and con-

Pritzker vetoes measure granting Ameren authority over transmission line construction

Labor-backed measure was opposed by environmental groups

By Andrew Adams CAPITOL NEWS ILLINOIS

Gov. JB Pritzker on Aug. 16 vetoed a measure that would have granted existing utilities in downstate Illinois, notably Ameren Illinois, the "right of first refusal" for transmission line construction.

This would have given Ameren, the electric utility that serves much of downstate Illinois, authority to build new transmission lines without going through a competitive bidding process under federal regulations for any projects approved by the Midcontinent Independent System Operator, or MISO, before the end of 2024.

The governor issued what's called an amendatory veto, striking only the portion of House Bill 3445 that deals with the right of first refusal. He left the rest of the bill, which modifies a state grant program and re-

These projects, and those who will profit from them, have been gaining attention recently. As the country moves toward carbon-free energy transmission, billions of dollars of construction will be required to transport ly bidding transmission conelectricity from new, renewable sources.

The National Renewable Energy Laboratory suggested in a 2022 study that to achieve 100 percent clean electricity, the nation could need as much as three times the transmission capacity as it currently has.

Last summer, MISO, the organization that manages Rep. Larry Walsh, D-Elwood, the electric grid in downstate Illinois and in 14 other states, approved a $10.3 billion portfolio of projects across the Midwest. The group is expected to approve another multi-billion-dollar portfolio in 2024.

Pritzker wrote in a letter quires several policy studies, to lawmakers explaining his

"corporate profits over consumers.'

"Without competition, Ameren ratepayers will pay for these transmission projects at a much higher cost,' Pritzker wrote. "Competitivestruction, instead of giving the utility a monopoly, has been shown to lower costs significantly.'

Lawmakers will have the option of accepting the governor's changes, overriding the veto so that the bill becomes law as passed, or letting it die due to the veto.

The bill's chief sponsor, told Capitol News Illinois that he stands by the policy and will try to pass the bill over the governor's objection during the legislature's veto session, which begins in Oc-

"I'm gonna work my bill. I know how the vote went, I know the nuts and veto that the proposal puts bolts of it," Walsh said. "I'm filing for an override. I went down there to protect Illinois workers. That's what I'm going to do.'

Walsh stressed that he sees the bill as being beneficial to laborers. In his view, the competitive bid process opens up transmission line construction to out-of-state companies, over which the state has less

Allowing Ameren control over transmission projects, Walsh said, would have ensured Illinois unions were employed for the projects under Illinois' worker protections, and the Illinois Commerce Commission would have had oversight authority on any profits made by Ameren from the Overriding the governor's veto may prove challenging, as the proposal split organized labor and environmental groups, two core parts of the Democrats' base.

It also split the Democrats' legislative supermajorities, passing on a 41-9 vote in the Senate, with one senator would need 36 votes in the House to override the veto. Corey Stone, the assistant business manager for IBEW Local 51, advocated for

May. He said his union was

"disappointed" in the veto. In a statement, Shawn Schukar, the head of Ameren's transmission arm, said that the veto would result in "unnecessary delays" to transmission construction and that such projects should be managed by a "trusted local energy companies with a proven track record of success, who already competitively bid the projects with local contractors and union workers.

Environmental however, quickly celebrated the move. Jen Walling, the head of the Illinois Envivoting "present," and a 63-32 ronmental Council, said in vote in the House, with two a statement that lawmakers voting "present." The bill were not given enough time to consider the implications Senate and 71 votes in the of the bill when they voted

"We cannot further delay clean energy adoption, particularly in central and souththe proposal when it went ern Illinois communities that through the legislature in have long been burdened with predatory practices from utilities like Ameren," Walling said. "Gov. Pritzker's veto of this bill will allow Illinois to bring large-scale clean energy projects online in a competitive market, which will keep costs low and protect consumers.'

Others, like the Illinois Clean Jobs Coalition, believed the bill would have given a big handout to the big utility without providing any protections for workers or customers.'

Samuelson honored

For 60 years, Orion Samuelson's distinctive, booming voice explained the importance of agriculture to listeners of WGN Radio. His timely broadcasts served not only farmers and agribusiness, but also served everyday citizens by making agriculture easy to understand. "If you eat, you're involved in agriculture," Orion was fond of saying.

Orion was honored at an Aug. 2 ceremony at the McHenry County Fair with the renaming of Building D as the Honorary Orion Samuelson Meeting Hall. County Board Chairman Mike Buehler also read and presented him and his wife, Gloria, a copy of a proclamation honoring him that will be adopted this month.

State to put $20 million toward grants for grocers, research into food insecurity

New law aims to alleviate 'food deserts' throughout the state

By Andrew Adams CAPITOL NEWS ILLINOIS

Communities across Illinois that lack access to nearby stores that sell high quality food may soon see that

Gov. JB Pritzker on Aug. 18 signed a bill that sets up a program to distribute $20 million for grants and technical assistance for grocery stores as well as funding research into food insecurity.

The grants will go to grocery stores that are inde-pendently owned, including for-profit and nonprofit organizations, co-ops and grocery stores owned by units of local

The program's proponents say supporting grocers with state funds will be a boon for residents and struggling local economies.

"When our residents struggle to keep a roof over their head, can't put food on the table, or have to choose between paying for basic medical care and keeping the lights on—that's a failure of the system," Pritzker said in a Friday news release.

According to 2021 data from the U.S. Department of Agriculture, at least 3 million Illinois residents live in food deserts as defined in the new law, although the state's Department of Commerce and Economic Opportunity can designate additional areas as food deserts.

Data collected this spring by the U.S. Census Bureau also revealed that food insecurity affects multiracial, Hispanic and Black households at higher rates than white households.

Officials declined to announce a specific timeline for when the grants will become available but said that updates would be published on the DCEO website when about the grant application process is finalized.

"We're moving as fast as we can because we know there's a need across the state," Pritzker said at a Friday news conference.

One of the bill's chief sponsors, freshman state Rep. Mary Beth Canty, D-Arlington Heights, said in an interview with Capitol News Illinois that she also views the bill as a step toward reducing violence.

"When there's a lack of investment in communities, that's when you start to see incidents of violence rise,'

She also noted that she hopes to revisit food availability through further legislation or other state programs.

"Some of the things we've talked about are looking at this from a public health perspective," Canty said. "On the business side of things, we're looking at our licensing struc-

While the Grocery Initiative originated among Democrats, it passed the Senate unanimously in May, something Pritzker credited to Sen. Dale Fowler, R-Harrisburg. Fowler noted that areas of his rural district struggle with food access.

"An entire county in the 59th district that I represent does not have one single grocery store," Fowler said.

In the House, however, there was more conservative opposition leading to a 96-17 vote, splitting the Republican party.

Among the dissenters was Rep. Martin McLaughlin, R-Barrington Hills, who took a hardline stance against the bill, saying the proposal was a "horrendous idea" during floor debate on the bill in May and likening government support for grocery stores to socialist countries like Venezu-

Lake County jury convicts man for causing fatal DUI accident noon, Wednesday, August 16, a jury trial concluded with a "guilty' verdict on one count of Aggravated Brian J. King Driving with any amount of drug in urine, a class 2 felony. Brian J. King, 41, was charged after the Lake Sheriff's Office conducted an extensive investigation into an Ingleside crash that caused the death of 53-year-old, Michael Brennan in June 2021.

"Our team secured justice for Michael through this verdict. I am so proud of the excellent efforts of the Sheriff's Office, trial prosecutors, and victim-support professionals who all worked together in this heartbreaking case" said State's Attorney Eric Rinehart after the jury's decision.

The jury trial began on August 14, lasting three days, with both parties resting on Wednesday afternoon. The jury heard from several State witnesses, including law enforcement officers, eyewitnesses, and an expert in forensic toxicology from the Northeastern Illinois Regional Crime Lab.

Eyewitness testimony explained how King traveled on Route 12 and Route 59, swerving repeatedly for approximately 13 miles before eventually approaching Stanton Point Road and hitting Michael Brennan, who was walking on grass and gravel next to the shoulder.

Law enforcement officers also explained how chemical tests were administered to the defendant, which revealed that King's urine Methamphetcontained amine as well as seven other controlled substances.

Medical expert testimony explained how the injuries from the accident led to Brennan's death on June 16, McHenry County Sheriff's Office, in conjunction with the Major Investigation Assistance Team (MIAT), and McHenry County Coroner's Office are involved in the ongoing investigation. The McHenry County Sheriff's Office emphasized that this was an isolated incident and there was no danger to the public.

Sheriff's K9 Drako responded along with Mundelein K9 Ranger. The duo tracked Frank for approximately one mile and located him hiding in a wetland area. He surrendered when the K9s confronted him.

Frank was found to be in possession of a semi-automatic pistol.

On August 19, at approximately 3:10 p.m. Lake County Sheriff's Marine Unit Deputies responded to Petite Lake for a boat crash with injuries.

Sheriff's deputies arrived and located a damaged Yamaha Wave Runner, which struck a Hurricane Deck Boat. The operator of the Yamaha, a 53-year-old man of Crystal Lake, had already been transported to shore by a Good Samaritan.

87-year-old woman dies in single car

Lake County Sheriff's Crash Investigators are investigating a fatal Lake Barrington traffic crash.

On August 16, at approximately 12:45 p.m., Lake County Sheriff's Deputies responded to the 100 block of Waterview Court, Lake Barrington, for a single-vehicle traffic crash with injuries. Sheriff's deputies arrived and located a Nissan Altima with major damage.

Preliminary investigation shows the driver of the Nissan, an 87-year-old woman of Lake Barrington, was traveling northbound on Waterview Court. For an unknown reason, the driver of the Nissan accelerated and drove off the roadway into a yard. The Nissan struck a garbage can and small tree, before striking a large tree, which stopped the vehicle.

The woman sustained significant injuries in the crash. Lifesaving efforts were attempted on the woman, however, she was pronounced deceased at the scene. Nobody else was involved or injured in the crash.

Traffic crash investigators are investigating if the woman unintentionally pressed the gas pedal, instead of the brake pedal, causing her to lose control.

The Lake County Coroner's Office responded and an autopsy is being scheduled.

The crash remains under investigation by the Lake County Sheriff's Office Technical Crash Investigations

County Sheriff's Department. Suspects are considguilty in a court of law.
