Rozga Funeral and Cremation Services new, third location at 225 Eagle Lake Avenue in Mukwonago, WI.

A Grand Opening

Rozga Funeral & Cremation Services is opening their third location

Rozga Funeral and Cremation Services will host a grand opening on Saturday March 1, 2025 as the family is excited to present its third location at 225 Eagle Lake Ave. Mukwonago, WI. Beginning at 12:00 p.m. (Noon) with a ribbon cutting ceremony and public open house to follow.

From cabinets to caskets: a century of legacy

What makes the Rozga facility so unique is the more than 125 years of knowledge the family brings to the community. Operating since 1898, Rozga Funeral Homes are one of the oldest funeral homes in the state of Wisconsin owned and operated by the same family, now in its fifth generation, of Rozga men.

The patriarch, Stephan Rozga, began as a furniture maker but quickly evolved into wooden caskets, as the early 1900s brought high demand given the mortality rate from epidemics of the time. By 1909, twenty-two years before licensure would become required in the state, Stephan had become one of the earliest graduates of the Wisconsin Funeral Directors Embalming School. The license was one of the first hundred granted.

A visionary for his time, Stephan purchased the land of (what is now) South 7th Street and Lincoln, in Milwaukee and built the first Rozga funeral home, which continues to serve families today. Stephan's youngest son, John joined the trade in 1910 and was a funeral director until1969. In 1946, the third generation joined the business, Thomas P. Rozga. Thomas ran the business for almost five decades until 2009, which included a 22-year span of time spent maintaining his military status to support the war effort(s). He served as a pilot in the Navy, Marines and Army where he received four Distinguished Flying Crosses before his military retirement from the Army

Leadership through legacy is the Rozga difference. L-R Stephan, John, Thomas, John II and Trevor Rozga.

Reserves in 1962.

In 1982, Thomas' son, John J. II (John) joined the business. Upon retirement of his father, he and his wife Jacqueline (Jackie) took over the business and in that same year purchased a second location to support and expand on the family's growing reputation for exceptional funeral and cremation services, at 4309 South 20th in Milwaukee. "It's funny when people ask me why did I want to continue in the family business," John commented. "While it might seem odd to an outsider, the funeral business has a beautiful way of reminding us to appreciate our loved ones, time is sometimes short. I couldn't think of another career that could promise that," he finished.

By 2017, the family legacy would remain strong, as John's son, Trevor would continue in the family footsteps, receiving his Wisconsin Funeral Directors and Embalmers license and joining day-to-day operational functions. Today, Trevor continues to play an integral role in the growth of the business, having helped launch the third location. "When I think about being the fifth generation, it's some serious shoes to fill," Trevor articulated. "But it's the very reason I am excited about continuing to build our future; it's anchored on a deep heritage," he finished.

First of its kind facility in Mukwonago

The new facility was the result of a twelve-month, major renovation project, turning what was a 13,000 square foot health clinic into a fullservice funeral complex. Housing a chapel, meeting rooms and the first ever crematory in Mukwonago, Eagle Lake Cremations LLC. Additionally, the family is proud to announce Treasured Tails Pet Memorials and Cremation which is also housed within the building, headed up by Jackie. A first of its kind in the area, military veteran (US Air Force) Jackie likes to note, "One of the tenants to starting the pet journey, was for families to know the legacy and distinctive attention families experienced with Rozga, would be translated into how we treat their pets." She continued, "It's important families, when we have your loved one, they will never leave our care.'

This location will help the Rozgas serve a new audience of families and pet families alike. What has remained through the legacy of more than 125 years and five generations, is the cornerstone of what Stephan represented; an assurance of dignified service and commitment to excellence of care. Rozga is regarded for both its beauty and art in the science of embalming as well as the dedication to providing solace and understanding for the many families whose lives have been made more peaceful through the impacts the Rozga family has made.
