Retired director of MCCD is recipient of the 2025 George and Barbara Fell Award

The Natural Land Institute (NLI) presented the George and Barbara Fell Award to Ed Collins at their annual dinner on March 20, held at The Radisson Conference Center in Rockford.

The award is named after the founder of NLI, George B. Fell, and his wife Barbara, who dedicated their lives to the preservation and protection of natural areas for rare and endangered plants. It recognizes outstanding accomplishments in land conservation in northern Illinois. To see a list of past recipients since 1997, visit the NLI website at www.naturalland.org/gb-fell-award.

Ed Collins dedicated his career to developing a deep understanding of the ecology and conservation of the woodlands, prairies and wetlands of McHenry County. He retired as Director of Land Preservation and Natural Resources of the McHenry County Conservation District after serving 38 years with the agency. There, he was involved in the preservation and restoration of 25,000 acres of open space. Collins played an important role in the re-meandering of Nippersink Creek in Glacial Park, in the development of the first comprehensive spatial mapping of oak loss in the region, and in the creation of the Hackmatack National Wildlife Refuge.

In every aspect of Collins' work to protect natural resources, he is a proven leader that brings together volunteers, staff, partner organizations and funding to fulfill a vision for a healthier world.

Collins is well-known for many things – as a speaker and storyteller, as someone knowledgeable in resource evaluation and scientific data, as a consensus builder, and most importantly, as a conservation champion who advocates for the natural world.

In his speech accepting the award, Collins said, "Thank you to NLI for the honor that this evening represents to me. I will always view it as one of the high points of my four decades spent in conservation work."

He also talked about the many ways he partnered with NLI over the years, and people that influenced his career such as NLI's founder, "George Fell and the companions he traveled with, his Argonauts if you will, are the origin story of the restoration movement that so many of us have devoted our lives and our passions too. Whatever your project may be, you can trace it backwards and find a connection to this same origin story. The conservation accomplishments of each of us, spring from this single narrative. We are scions born of the same tree."

At the end of his speech, Collins encouraged everyone to continue their efforts for the future of nature, "Sometimes all it takes to change the direction of things is the courage to stand up and speak for the land.

When the natural world we live in deep communion with asks us to give voice, remember that the Earth is not without her knights and shield maidens and today they fill this room. Thank you and may your own origin stories grow deep beauty and daring ideas for years to come providing the inspiration for others to find their own connection to nature."

Business-nonprofit collaboration sparks new social work grad student scholarship

Sweet Peach Tree Marketplace funds iCARE4 Adoption Competency Scholarship

Cynthia Wolf
CONTRIBUTOR

Social work graduate students interested in specializing in supporting the mental health needs of Illinois school children from adoptive, foster and kinship families are eligible to apply for a new scholarship.

The new Sweet Peach Tree iCARE4 Adoption Competency Scholarship for School Social Workers is an annual $500 award, with the first winner to be announced in October. It is the result of a collaboration between Sweet Peach Tree Marketplace, a Wilmette-based purveyor of natural hair and skin care products for multiracial families, and iCARE4 Adoptive and Foster Families, a non-profit based in Lake Forest.

“As a mom and advocate, I know firsthand how vital it is for adoptive and foster families to feel truly seen and supported,” said Kate Shanahan, founder of Sweet Peach Tree Marketplace and the mother of both a biological daughter, age 12, and an adopted daughter, who is 5.

“School social workers are on the front lines, shaping the experiences of these families every day,” continued Shanahan, who is funding the scholarship through 2028. “When we invest in those who support our families, we create a world where every child feels truly valued, loved and celebrated.”

Eligible to apply are social work graduate students in their final year of graduate school or internship in Illinois who have completed the School-Based Mental Health Professional Training for Adoption Competency. Developed by the Center for Adoption Support and Education, or C.A.S.E., the training includes eight modules covering topics including attachment, loss and grief, trauma-informed assessment and best practices for mental health support. The training is available at adoptionssupport.org/case-training-institute/school-based-mental-health-professionals-training.

Laura Adams, who also is a biological and adoptive mom, as well as president/CEO of iCARE4 Adoptive and Foster Families, said the new scholarship will help further the nonprofit’s aims.

“We are here to educate, equip and empower all who raise, teach or support adoptive, foster and kinship families,” she said of iCARE. “With over 300,000 children from these families attending Illinois schools, it is imperative that school social workers receive the training necessary to understand their unique needs.”

To review the list of required application materials and to apply for the scholarship, visit icare4aaff.org/scholarship-application-portal between April 1 and the Sept. 1 deadline.

Residents are asked to take a survey by May 1 to help the county shape the content and implementation of comprehensive plan.

Help shape a more accessible Lake County

Residents are asked to take a survey by May 1

Lake County is developing an Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) Comprehensive Transition Plan to enhance accessibility across the community. Regular updates to this plan are essential to ensure compliance with ADA standards and to improve access to public spaces, programs and services.

To locate areas of most significant concern to the public, Lake County is seeking input through a survey and an interactive map. The feedback will help shape the content and implementation of the plan, ensuring that Lake County remains inclusive and accessible to all. The comprehensive transition plan is anticipated to be completed by the end of the year.

Public Access Survey

This survey is designed to prioritize areas of accessibility improvements. As you respond, please focus on Lake County-owned public properties, programs, services, activities and other public amenities.

Interactive Map

The interactive map allows you to provide feedback on pedestrian accessibility, safety and connectivity throughout Lake County. You’ll see stoplight icons along County highways and building icons marking County-owned buildings as these are our primary areas of focus for the ADA Comprehensive Transition Plan. However, you are welcome to add comments anywhere on the map to highlight accessibility concerns.

The survey and interactive map will remain open until Thursday, May 1, 2025. For more information about the ADA, Lake County and to access the survey and map, visit Lake County website at <https://www.lakecountyil.gov/5225/Americans-with-Disabilities-Act>.

Raoul challenges blocked public health funding as feds rescinds education dollars

By Peter Hancock
Capitol News Illinois

Illinois Attorney General Kwame Raoul joined another multistate lawsuit against the Trump administration, this time seeking to block the termination of nearly $12 billion worth of public health grants to states.

Raoul was part of a coalition of 24 state attorneys general and governors who filed the lawsuit against the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services and Secretary Robert F. Kennedy Jr., for terminating the grants.

The Illinois Department of Public Health announced March 26 that HHS was pulling back $477 million in grant funding that previously had been approved for Illinois. That included $125 million that was earmarked to support laboratory operations in 97 local health departments as well as $324 million for future work to prevent and treat infectious diseases in Illinois.

The suit, filed in federal court in Rhode Island, argues that Congress appropriated those funds in various pandemic-related spending bills, and the administration’s decisions to terminate the grants violated the federal Administrative Procedures Act.

“Illinois and states across the nation rely on federal grants to provide state public health services that protect our children and residents from serious diseases or health crises,” Raoul said in a statement. “The abrupt termination of this funding that impacts millions of American lives is both callous and unlawful.”

Since the start of the second Trump administration in January, Raoul has joined numerous multistate lawsuits seeking to block various executive orders and policy initiatives. Those include Trump’s efforts to halt the recognition of birthright citizenship; to freeze the distribution of federal funds previously appropriated by Congress; to dismantle the U.S. Department of Education, and to terminate the employment of tens of thousands of federal employees.

U.S. Department of

Education rescinds millions allocated to Illinois

The Illinois State Board of Education said last week the Trump administration has decided to “claw back” more than $77 million in federal pandemic relief funds that had previously been approved for Illinois but not yet spent.

Those funds represent the final portion of more than

$7.8 billion in school-related pandemic relief funds allocated to Illinois. ISBE said in a statement that it made commitments to distribute those funds to various grantees, but some of the grantees had asked for and received extensions on the deadline to actually spend the funds, “to account for supply chain issues, staffing shortages, and other delays due to the pandemic.”

On March 28, however, ISBE said the federal agency revoked those extensions, effectively taking back any funds that had not yet been spent.

“This decision is a devastating blow to the students and schools that were relying on those approved funds to provide critical services,” State Superintendent of Education Tony Sanders said in a statement. “School districts depend on stability in funding to plan effectively and ensure continuity of services for students. The abrupt reversal of this extension disrupts stability and jeopardizes essential programs that support students’ learning recovery.”

The U.S. Department of Education did not immediately respond to a request for an explanation of its decision.

County wins Distinguished Budget Presentation Award for current 2025 budget

McHenry County has again won top honors for budget reporting from a respected international organization of its finance professional peers.

McHenry County received the Distinguished Budget Presentation Award from the Government Finance Officers Association of the United States and Canada for its current FY 2025 budget. The award recognizes that McHenry County met stringent and nationally accepted standards and guidelines in presenting its annual budget to policymakers and the public.

This is the 11th time that McHenry County has won the prestigious award; last year, McHenry County was one of a select few in Illinois and across the nation to receive the honor.

“Recognition by the GFOA puts McHenry County in an elite class when it comes to budgeting and transparency,”

County Board Chairman Mike Buehler, R-Crystal Lake, said. “At a time when government spending is under unprecedented and justified scrutiny, McHenry County’s taxpayers can be assured that County government is a very responsible steward of their money.”

The GFOA is a nonprofit professional organization that advances excellence in government finance by providing best practices, professional development, resources, and practical research for more than 21,000 members.

“I’m honored that our hard work is recognized by GFOA, year in and year out, as among the best,” Chief Financial Officer Kerri Wisz said. “This award is a testament to the Finance Department’s dedicated staff who take our fiduciary duty to the public very seriously.”

The full 2025 budget is on display through ClearGov, a powerful tool that allows viewers to easily examine it in as great a detail as they wish; it can be found on the McHenry County website at www.mchenrycountyil.gov.

Taxpayers also can visit the county’s Financial Dashboard, a simpler tool for reviewing expenses and revenues; it can be found at www.mchenrycountyil.gov/financialdashboard, and dashboard reports are available going back to 2017.

In December, the GFOA also bestowed McHenry County with a Certificate of Achievement on McHenry County for its annual comprehensive financial report for the 2023 fiscal year. The annual report lists a government’s audited year-end fiscal activities in detail, and the award is the highest recognition the GFOA offers in the area of government accounting and financial reporting.

Judges of the Nineteenth Judicial Circuit visited 14 schools as part of the IJA reading project

The Illinois Judge’s Association (IJA) “Page It Forward” program is intended for children in grades K-4 to encourage reading appreciation, value, and enjoyment. This program was initiated by one of the 19th Judicial Circuit’s very own, now a Justice in the Second District Appellate Court and former president of the Illinois Judges Association, the Honorable Mary S. Schostok.

Justice Schostok said, “This reading deficiency affects student learning and contributes to the high school dropout rate. Our reading project is one small step which we hope will inspire young students to appreciate the value of books as they learn a little about history and our system of justice directly from a sitting judge.”

Twenty-one 19th Judicial Circuit Judges made classroom appearances, dressed in black robes, to read books to the students and donate various items to the schools. Judges visited 25 classrooms and engaged a total of 610 students. Twenty gavels were also donated thanks to the Illinois Judges Foundation and the Illinois Judges Association. Additionally, 624 coloring and activity books were donated, courtesy of the 19th Judicial Circuit.

Most importantly, students and school libraries received 257 books donated through funding from the Illinois Judges

Foundation, specifically:

- 45 copies of “Malala: A Hero for All”
- 100 copies of “Abe Lincoln’s Hat”
- 21 copies of “Escape North! The Story of Harriet Tubman”
- 23 copies of “George Washington’s Dog”
- 68 copies of “Who is Ketanji Brown Jackson”

The IJA’s Page It Forward reading and tutoring program is just one of a series of community programs undertaken by the Illinois Judges Association. Other IJA programs include: “Courtroom in the Classroom,” a presentation that celebrates the U.S. Constitution; “7 Reasons to Leave the Party,” addressing the legal and personal consequences of drinking and driving, taking drugs, and engaging in other unhealthy behaviors; “Worries of the World Wide Web”, a program created to address the increasing problem of cyberbullying, electronic harassment, and sexting/pornography; and “Your Future, Your Choice,” educating students about the justice system, how a case goes through the system, the difference between the juvenile and the adult system, and crimes associated with the internet and social media. Information on these programs can be found on the website at ija.org/school-programs.

Flat Iron Road bridge project underway

The McHenry County Division of Transportation announces the start of the Flat Iron Road Bridge Project. The project was scheduled to start March 31 and is expected to be completed by the end of August 2025, weather permitting.

Flat Iron Road will be closed starting March 31, from Airport Road to IL

Route 173. Local access to homes will be maintained at all times. Waterway closures are to be expected, and signage will be placed to notify water-travelers of the construction zone.

The detour redirects traffic from the intersection of Flat Iron Road and Airport Road to IL Route 14 and IL Route 173. Signs have been posted along the designated route to help guide vehicle drivers while the detour is in place.

The project will replace the bridge on Flat Iron Road over Mokeler Creek.

Follow the Division of Transportation on Facebook and Nextdoor to stay abreast of construction projects on county highways.
